THE MCGILL HOCKEY TEAM.

Well the Redmen showed that they had what it takes last Friday night, and all those who were present at the game saw McGill trounce the Air Force 5-3 in a very hectic and exciting battle. It was quite clear that if it had not been for the great play of Bruce Ward, Herb Owen and Paul Gagnon on the defence and the able net-minding of Ross Ritchie, the Airmen might have won. The Red team managed to hold off most of the threat that the opposition made, though midway through the third period after the Air Force had scored twice in succession, the final outcome was in doubt. The individual star of the game was ginger-haired Bud Farmer who scored a goal and earned two assists. Young Tommy Hale also showed his stuff and was credited with two points.

By far the most brilliant of the evening was the last goal scored by Farmer on passes from Costigan and Hale. All three handled the puck on a triangular pass in front of the Air Force net, Buddy finally putting it past Gagnon. This Friday night McGill takes on Hughie Farquharson's high riding Navy team for the league leadership. Displaying a fast moving aggregation last week, the sailors look like the team to beat in the N.D.H.L. this season. This game, which will be played as the second half of a double header, looks as if it will have everything. The McGill cheering section should be there en masse to make sure the Redmen come through with their second straight victory.

PERSONAL OBSERVATION

At the hockey game last Friday night, about a dozen WAAF's watched the game from the McGill cheering section where the UATC boys were seated. Upon request, most of them sat amongst the fellows, talking, joking and generally adding to the gay spirit. When one blonde cutie made an attempt to join the rest of her girl friends a few rows behind her, we noticed that she was grabbed by a husky UATC airman. Unfortunately the poor girl was caught off balance, and there she was with her arms in one row, the rest of her body in another, and her legs dangling in the air with the McGill boy's arms clasped about her waist. The age of chivalry must be dead, or is it true what they say about Suzie?

LES CANADIENS.

After a very successful start in the current N.H.L. race, the Canucks were beaten twice last week-end by the fast moving Detroit Red Wings and again last Tuesday night by the Boston Bruins. The Canadians seemed to lack their usual punch and colour on Saturday night, and could not cope with Jack Adams' hard hitting squad. These three losses have sunk the local team into third place, tied with the Bruins and Maple Leafs. Now that "Red" Gouppille has joined the Army, and Terry Reardon is headed in that direction also, Coach Dick Irvin finds himself in the same unfortunate position as most of the other coaches do, that of finding replacements. No doubt a few of the Washington Eagles will soon be on their way up, and playing in the N.H.L.

Charity Drive Opens Monday Of Next Week

Each Student To Donate One Dollar

The McGill Amalgamated Charities Drive begins on Monday, November 23, and continues for a week. Every student is expected to contribute one dollar. Chairmen have organized their assistants to canvass a dozen or so people each. In this way, every student may be contacted.

Quotas Announced
If each person contributes his quota, the amounts from the various faculties should be as follows: R.V.C. is expected to give $600, and the Faculty and Arts and Science $550. The Engineering Faculty has been allotted a quota of $400. The figures for Medicine are $300. The quota for Dentistry is $60, and Architecture and Law are expected to contribute $25 each. These amounts have been figured out on the basis of one dollar for each student, with the division based on Faculties. The total for the body of McGill students will thus be expected to reach $2,060.

The reason for amalgamating the charities is that it has been found that one charity drive is easier on the student's pocketbook and therefore more successful.

Need For Contributions.
It has been emphasized by members of the committee that the needs for the charities are just as great in war time as in peace. The government, because of heavy war burdens, has cancelled many of its charity grants for the duration of the war, and consequently the charities depend more on the contributions of the people.

The executive committee at McGill in charge of the Charity Drive has issued an appeal that students recognize the urgency of the need and contribute accordingly when they are approached by canvassers. It is hoped by the Chairman that the drive this year will be not only equally successful as, but even more so than, last year's.

Commerce Will Meet Tonight

Prof. Higgins Guest Speaker At Supper

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. the Commerce under-graduates will attend a supper meeting of their society in the Union Grill Room. The guest speaker is Professor Higgins, one of the two Brontman professors of Economics. There is an admission fee of $55. The tickets may be obtained from any class officers, and also from the executive of the Commerce Society.

The guest speaker, Professor Higgins, has just returned from Washington where he worked on some aspects of the post-war problem. He will address the meeting on the subject "Post-War Reconstruction".

M. Rossy of the executive wishes to announce that Freshmen and Freshettes will be especially welcomed, and that it would be to their own advantage to avail themselves of this opportunity of meeting other students in their faculty. This supper meeting will also give them a chance to hear of the Society's future plans.

RVC Historical Club Meets In Draw. Room, 8.15 p.m.

The R.V.C. Historical Club will hold its second meeting of the year today in the northern end of the R.V.C. drawing room. The meeting will begin at 8.15 p.m.

Cicely Greer and Antoinette Waelbroeck will be the speakers for the evening. It has been announced that Miss Greer will discuss "French Nobility in the 17th Century," while Miss Waelbroeck will discuss "Voltaire and the Calumnies."

Plans for holding a meeting with the Men's Historical Club will also be discussed.

The executive wishes to announce that all women students interested in history are cordially invited to attend.

Radio Group To Record Show

Radio Workshop Makes Second Disc at CKAC

Anne Hughes, secretary of the McGill Radio Workshop announced last night that arrangements have been made to record this week's production on Saturday afternoon at Station CKAC. Plans have been made to record all future productions at this station, it also was announced.

All members who were not cast in NORTHWARD BOUND will meet in a Radio Drama Study Group in the Union Music Room under the direction of Catherine Merritt at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday. There will be a rehearsal of NORTHWARD BOUND tonight at 8 o'clock in the Union Music Room. All members of the cast must attend rehearsal or get in touch with Anne Hughes at HA. 9176, or with Stan Eldinger at HA. 5810.

There will be no meeting of the Script Conference Group tonight. All members who are assigned scripts to write should hand them in at the Union Tuck Shop.

The next production will be under the direction of Allan Thomson. Stan Eldinger, president, invites all radio aspirants to attend the next meeting.

Medical Society Hears Dr. Selye

Demonstration on Clinic Technique To Follow Talk

Meeting in the lecture room B of the Medical Building, at 5.00 p.m., the Pre-Medical Society will hear Dr. Hans Selye of the Histological department on routine examinations. A demonstration to illustrate the techniques which Dr. Selye describes will follow his talk. In order to do this, the group will meet in various laboratories of the building after the lecture.

Dr. Selye attended universities in Paris, Rome and Prague, although he was born in Vienna. He received his medical degree at the University of Prague in 1929. Following this formal education, he worked as an assistant in the Experimental Pathological department of the university. At the same time, he was in charge of the Histological Laboratory.

Dr. Selye came to the department of Bio-Chemistry of McGill in 1932. He had received his Ph.D. several years before this, and entered McGill on an exchange fellowship. He has been teaching in the Medical department since that time.

Tickets Are Now On Sale For McGill Union Informal

Dance Scheduled To Be Held Friday November 27

Tickets for the Union Informal are now on sale at the Union Tuck Shop, at Bill Gentleman's office and at Fred Barton's office in the Engineering Building. The tickets are selling at $1.00 per couple, tax included.

The Informal is being held Friday, November 27 in the Ballroom of the McGill Union. Dancing is scheduled to begin at 9.00 p.m. and will continue until 1.00 a.m.

The informal will feature Eddie Alexander and his orchestra, who will provide the music. This orchestra is well known among those who have attended Union Informals in past years and the Union House committee expects that Alexander will be a distinct drawing-card.

It has also been announced that the Union Grill Room will be open to provide couples with refreshments during the evening. It is planned to have the Grill Room open for the whole of the evening, thus avoiding any overcrowding.

Every year the Union holds a series of informal dances for the students. These dances have always been part of the policy of the Union, giving the students an opportunity to take part in a quiet college dance, and at the same time making use of the Union facilities.

Student Rally To Be Held Tonight in Union Ballroom

Gathering Sponsored By War Council; Glinka Choir to Perform

There will be a student rally held tonight in the Union Ball Room at 8.15 p.m. This gathering is being sponsored by the War Council, to enable students to commemorate further International Students' Day. There will be several speeches, telling of the conditions of students in many lands, supplemented by a cultural program topped by the Russian Glinka Choir, of 35 voices, who will appear in Russian national costume.

The principal speech of the evening will be given by Mile. Frances, on the theme of the position of students in wartime. Mile. Frances, who is a University Women's Fellow in Philosophy and Assistant in French, has been in close contact with students in many of the occupied countries, and particularly in France.

The work of the International Student Service throughout the world will be outlined in a speech by Dale Brown, who is the I.S.S. secretary in Canada, and is in charge of administering the prisoner-of-war relief in this country.

The main item on the cultural part of the program is to be a presentation of Russian songs by the Russian Glinka Choir. This choir has 35 members, and has given recitals at many important events, such as mass meetings at the Forum. This choir had to go to a great deal of trouble to attend the meeting tonight, and a member of the committee in charge stated that he hoped that there would be a good turnout for them.

In addition to this choir, several other items are planned, including a short piano recital by Bob Stachewitz.

There will also be short talks by various individuals on the status of students in some war-torn country with which they are especially familiar. Dr. Leblond, Lecturer in Anatomy will present a picture of the conditions facing French students.

Returns for Banquet Will Reach First Objective This Afternoon

Ticket sales for the Engineering banquet will pass the 150 mark today if the current rate of returns keeps up. This will mean a refund of twenty-five cents for each purchaser. The banquet will be held tomorrow night in the McGill Union at 6.45 p.m.

Guest speaker of the evening will be L. Austin Wright, assistant director of National Selective Service, who will address the Engineers on the effect of Selective Service on the graduate engineer. He has agreed to answer questions from the floor, hoping that this will clarify the workings of Selective Service. Several weeks ago, he addressed a group of students at Queen's on the same topic.

The floor-show will be presented after the speaker, and is under the direction of Jack Adams. It will feature a Hawaiian-Oriental danseuse, a soft-shoe performer, a comedy act, and a magician. The committee in charge of the Banquet has designed the program to suit the widest possible variety of tastes.

Tickets may be obtained from the chairman of the committee, Ross Ritchie, from the class presidents, and from the representatives of each year. The representatives are Mike Perrault, Bill Stewart, Bud Farmer, and George Wong. They may also be obtained at Fred Barton's office. The thermometer will indicate the progress of the sale of tickets, and will read 100 per cent, when the 160 mark is reached.

Manuel Batshaw Will Speak at Avukah Meeting

The Avukah will hold a supper meeting on Monday, November 23, at 5.30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Mr. Manuel Batshaw, who will speak on "The Jew and the War."

Manuel Batshaw is a McGill graduate social worker. He has done work in the Y.M.H.A. and in the Baron de Hirsch Institute, and last year he organized a summer camp for Young Judaea. At present he is a member of His Majesty's Armed Forces.

The meeting will take place at 527 Sherbrooke St. West, which is next door to R.V.C.

Nominations Due for Council

Nominees Must Be in Third Year

Next Monday is the deadline for nominations for faculty representatives to the Students' Executive Council. Nominations must be handed in to the Secretary of the Students' Society at the McGill Union before 2.30 p.m.

The nominees should be students in the junior year of their faculty, and must be in good academic standing, not carrying any subjects. Representatives are required from the following faculties: Engineering, Medicine, Law, Dentistry, School of Commerce, Theology, Arts and Science, and the Royal Victoria College.

In order to make a nomination effective, the name of the candidate should be inscribed on a sheet of paper, and the signatures of at least ten students of the faculty concerned should be appended. The completed forms should be handed in to the Secretary of the Students' Society, at his office in the Union, before the time of the deadline.

The Students' Executive Council is a group of students, elected by popular vote, that is in charge of student affairs as a whole. It also acts as an intermediate organization, to correlate the policies of the Students' Society and the University, and to carry out the policies of the Students' Society. In addition, it may act as a court before which any student may be called in case of misdeemeanor.

Elections will be held on December 11th, and will, as in the past, be under the supervision of the Undergraduate Societies concerned.

Council Cultural Group Gathers

Proceedings of Meeting Will Be Reviewed

The decision to hold a meeting of the Cultural Group of the War Council has been announced. A meeting of the Cultural Group will take place in the McGill Union Music Room tomorrow at 5.15 p.m. The group chairman, Jim Atkinson, will bring the meeting to order and give a resume of the proceedings at the executive meeting held by the War Council to date.

The chairman stated that all students who are connected with any of the organizations in the Cultural Group are invited to attend the meeting. It is an open meeting of the Cultural Group of the War Council and since the War Council is supposed to function by acting on ideas, received from the students in general, Jim Atkinson said he hoped that many constructive suggestions would be brought forward at the meeting. According to a member of the executive, any ideas that would assist the war effort of McGill would be appreciated.

Varsity Students Move Alien Students' Ban Should Be Reconsidered

International Student Day Rally Makes Resolution

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 17.—(C.U.P.)—Several hundred Varsity students today passed a resolution urging the University Board of Governors to reconsider its decision refusing 18 friendly alien students admittance to three federated colleges here. The Board of Governors' original decision was made at a meeting held last Thursday, when it was decided to refuse admittance to the aliens recently released from internment in Canadian camps.

The student resolution was made following the Varsity International Students' Day Rally in Convocation Hall. The motion was sponsored by the Toronto S.C.M. and was forwarded to the Secretary of the Board of Governors urging immediate reconsideration of the decision.

Excellent Dinner And Speeches Regale Freshmen

Upperclassmen Found Among Those Present

By F.A.

Last night first year students were offered the final organized entertainment given on their behalf; namely the annual freshman banquet and dance. The earlier part of the evening was devoted to the banquet; the women students assembled in the cafeteria, while the men dined in the grill room.

After an excellent dinner the students were addressed by the speakers of the evening. Miss Munroe, of the Department of Physical Education, addressed the women; she welcomed them to the university, and told them that upon entering college they were starting an entirely new experience in life, that they had left behind adolescence, and had now to prepare themselves for adulthood. She told them that the most important aspect of entering college, was the fact that they were given the privilege of choosing for themselves what they wanted to do, and should make the most of that opportunity.

The men were addressed by Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. Morris, M.C., V.D., commander of the McGill C.O.T.C. He discussed the rapid mechanical development of warfare within the last few years, and compared the weapons of previous wars with those used in the present struggle. But he emphasized the fact that war has not basically changed even within the last hundreds of years, and mentioned the three strongest strategic weapons in warfare: mobility, fire-power, and shock action. He gave examples of each, shock action as practised by the Macedonian phalanx, fire-power as practised by the British Archers at Crecy, and mobility as practised by Genghis Khan. He added that in modern war-fare these three principles instead of being used separately were united into one strategy.

He ended by saying that to unite these principles successfully it is necessary to train men perfectly, and that this was the reason why it was necessary to give so much apparently tiresome drill in the first year training at McGill. Colonel Morris was thanked by Glenn Cowan, president of last year's student society. The banquet was ended by a brief talk by Doug. Kerr, football coach, urging (Continued on Page Three)

Motion Defeated.

President H. J. Cody of the University of Toronto made a motion before the Board of Governors that the alien students should be admitted. This motion was defeated by a seven-seventy tie which according to a Board-by-law is declared negative. Heads of Varsity's three federated colleges as well as other university officials have voiced disapproval of the decision. The Principal of Victoria College, following a meeting of the Victoria Board of Regents last Friday wrote to President Cody stating their opinion that the Board is not within its legal rights. Father McLaughlin of St. Michael's College stated that the Board would seem to thus be assuming obligation of forcing the alien students to return to internment. The University Bursar stated that the decision was not based on racial grounds but in some measure was a question of the fairness of admitting foreign students while Canadians are fighting overseas.

It was announced that the aliens are in the main Jewish German nationals who were interned in England earlier in the war. They had been released from internment on condition that they pursue their studies under the sponsorship of Canadian citizens.

The text of the students' motion is as follows:

"That this representative body of students in the University of Toronto go on record as suggesting the motion of Dr. H. J. Cody in the recent meeting of the Board of Governors that 18 friendly aliens released from internment in Canada be allowed to enter the University of Toronto. Already we know many who have made a splendid contribution to the University and we will do all in our power to make others feel at home in our midst. We respectfully request the Board of Governors to reconsider its decision."

Chess Club Will Meet in Reading Room Tonight

The McGill Chess Club will meet in the Union Reading Room this evening at 8.00 p.m. It has been announced that all those who are entered in the tournament are expected by the executive to hand in the result of the first game in the first round of the annual club tournament.

The club is considering holding several matches in the near future, and it is stated that a game between Arts and Engineering will be held if sufficient interest is shown in the idea.

Novices as well as experts are welcomed at all club meetings, said a member of the executive, and the R.C.A.F. members stationed on the campus are especially invited to attend.

Alien Students

Considerable controversy has arisen this week on the Toronto Varsity campus over the question of admitting eighteen alien students to the University. Although the Board of Governors' vote was split evenly, the decision went to the negative. A strong protest was registered at a student meeting, and several college heads and other authorities also indicated their disapproval of this rather narrow attitude.

The very fact that the student body itself disagreed with the Board's decision, is indicative of the policy which should be followed. If the contemporaries of these wartime guests are willing to permit the continuation of their studies in Canada, little else need be said. The responsibility which the University authorities have assumed in forcing these students to return to internment is considerable.

There are other factors to be considered: All of these students have been residents of the British Empire for several years, and have been attending English schools and colleges. The British Government has released them only after a detailed examination of their records, and with the deliberate intention of allowing them to carry on their work. In view of these facts, the attitude of the Toronto authorities seems presumptuous to say the least.

On ethical grounds, there is admittedly room for argument. Whether European students should be permitted to continue their studies while Canadians are fighting overseas is debatable, as a purely academic question. But arguing on the grounds of practicality, it seems only reasonable that their entrance to University be permitted. Weighing the relative value of these eighteen students as an infantry platoon against their value as trained minds, for war and peace, it is easily seen that their greatest utility lies in their academic work.

There is one further point to be considered, which is of no small importance. The acceptance of these students in a Canadian University would be a material demonstration of international goodwill on the part of students and staff, about which many pious declarations have recently been made. The significance of this interchange of ideas across the Atlantic should not be underestimated. The McGill authorities have been most helpful and broadminded as regards this problem, and are to be congratulated for the policy which they have pursued.

It is to be hoped that Toronto will fulfill the wishes of its student body, and support a plan which has been eminently successful on this campus.

Not Again

On the International Student Day, November 17th, there was a meeting in the Moyse Hall addressed by Colonel Hutnik. Of all the students at McGill, only some 250 considered it worth their attention, compared with an attendance of more than 1,000 students at a similar meeting at Toronto.

Of course, many excuses had been made for the poor attendance at the meeting, but, in spite of the few hundred students who were unavoidably absent, there should have been a much better turnout for the meeting. Comparison should be made between the present attitude of the students at McGill, and that of the Czech students on November 17th, 1939.

The latter turned out en masse to attend the funeral of one of their number, Jan Opletal, a victim of the ruthless Nazi machine. They knew that the Nazis were seeking an excuse just such as this in order to start a vicious attack on the student body. Yet they turned out, in their thousands, at extreme personal peril.

The students at McGill, on the other hand, were merely asked to devote one hour of their time in remembrance of heroic deeds of their Czech counterparts, but the iron rule of apathy permitted only a mediocre turnout at the meeting in Moyse Hall.

Let McGill students remedy this state of affairs by coming to the meeting at the Union tonight in really large numbers, and show that McGill does not let the memory of the heroic Czech students pass unheeded.

Theatre Notes

AT THE ST. DENIS "LE COEUR DISPOSE" CAST

Helene	Germaine Aussey
Mme Miran-Charville	Jeanne Demons
Mme Flory	Rose Rey-Duzil
Jacqueline	Sita Ridez
Robert Levaltier	Marcel Journet
Miran-Charville	Charles Dechamps
Baron Houzier	J.-P. Kingsley
Falaise	Marcel Chabrier
Paralieux	Victor Page
Bourgeot	Marc Forze
Hubert	Roger Garceau
Ducray	Edouard Monnet

Although neither very original nor very subtle, "Le Cœur Dispose" is an entertaining and at times highly amusing satirical comedy on French society before the war. The principal actors and supporting cast do full justice to Francis de Croisset's sparkling and witty dialogue, and the tempo throughout is kept at a fast-moving pace.

Briefly, the plot centres around a wealthy family whose efforts are concentrated on marrying off their eldest daughter Helene. However, Helene has ideas of her own on the subject and refuses to be talked or forced into any marriage. Having an inheritance of 400,000 francs, she wants to be loved for herself and not for her money.

Into the household appears Robert Levaltier, successor to his uncle as secretary to M. Miran-Charville, Helene's father. Helene, who is scornful of most men, is particularly unpleasant to Robert who adopts a similar attitude, but his love for her finally conquers.

But not so with Helene. She becomes engaged to a visiting widower, Baron Houzier who is also the proud father of a seven-year-old boy of whom she is very fond. Shortly after the engagement is announced, however, Robert exposes the Baron's plan to defraud Helene's father of some valuable property. Helene overhears the whole proceedings, and of course breaks off her engagement to the Baron. Robert determines to leave his position, but both realize their love of each other, and so he remains. "La raison propose, le cœur dispose!"

Germaine Aussey as Helene turns in a creditable performance although her movements are somewhat restless and erratic. The hero is no more than adequate.

Of the supporting players, acting honours must go to Charles Dechamps for his characterization of the excitable and thick-headed "rentier," M. Miran-Charville. The author has drawn his character intelligently and Dechamps has not missed an opportunity to add considerably to it by his own clever interpretation.

Tea Leaves

by M.H.E.

Schvinsky sat watching the impressive face of the teacup reader with amused skepticism. This was going to be funny, he had decided. Madame Zonia was obviously one of the great frauds of the 1940's. All because fortune-telling had become a mania with the ignorant rank and file of today. That was the way with the rank and file. They always had a mania. Ten years ago it was patent medicines. Five years ago it was vitamins. Now it was this. "What does the future hold for you? Consult Madame Zonia, expert teacup reader from the East." Yeah, east of the Main Street, Schvinsky decided. Well, he would cure his wife of her mania, anyway, and as for the rest of the rank and file, it could go to the dogs or Madame Zonia for all he cared. All he had to do was to prove to Maria that this Zonia woman could not predict the future of anyone who did not give his thoughts away in his facial expressions.

Madame Zonia was a small woman with a lined face, and intent eyes. Her eyes were her best feature for her trade, Schvinsky decided; they gave you the feeling that she knew everything that went on in your mind, that she knew of every sin you had ever committed from stealing the neighbour's vegetables to deserting from the army, that she knew what you were going to do, too. It must be her eyes that made people believe in her. He looked her straight in the face. She wasn't going to stare him down, and just let her try to read his thoughts, let her try and tell him what was going to happen to him, just let her try...

Madame Zonia started to speak. "You don't believe in me," she said.

Schvinsky smiled wryly and answered nothing.

Madame Zonia continued. "You don't believe that a man's future can be visible to another human being, through the medium of such a simple thing as the remains of a cup of tea from which he has drunk or you?" She did not wait for him to answer, but went on. "You do, not believe because you don't want to believe, because you are afraid of believing. Nevertheless, I can tell you that every little action of your life has a direct bearing on every later action, and therefore to the individual who can see, to the individual who has the power to read one of those actions, all of your future life lies plain."

Schvinsky still gave no evidence of being impressed.

"What do my tea leaves predict?" he asked, handing her the cup from which he had just drunk the cold bitter water covering the leaves. She did not touch it.

"Turn it three times with your left hand," she said.

He obeyed, and handing it to her the second time, he spoke definitely.

"Tell me anything, if you can. I know you're a fake and a swindler, but I'd still like to hear what kind of a defence you can put up for yourself. Go ahead, what can you tell me?"

She glanced at the tea cup and looked up, ill at ease. "You don't believe I can tell you anything of your future," she said, her black eyes inscrutable. "You are right, I can't. I..."

"Well, then, why not do what you usually do, and make up something to tell me," he came back facetiously.

She smiled, ignoring his retort. "I can see nothing in your tea leaves. I can predict nothing," she rose and left him.

Schvinsky closed the door of the teacup reader's with triumph. Wait till he told Maria this. She'd be cured once and for all of her fortune teller mania. Why, the woman could only tell the stupid credulous men and women of the street, who came to her and admitted it whenever she hit on a true fact, and thereby gave her something to build on. All these astrologers, teacup readers, crystal gazers and fortunetellers were alike... fairly good self-made psychologists with imaginations. Why, she couldn't even tell him any of the little things he would be doing tomorrow, or the next day. She couldn't even tell him whether he'd be getting that promotion to sales manager, whether Maria's sister would be better after her operation, whether Maria and he should go to Lac St. John for their holidays or stay home this year. And all because he didn't believe in her and she knew he didn't believe in her. All because she couldn't read his mind. What an impostor she was! "What does the future hold for you? Consult Madame Zonia, expert teacup reader from the East." What a laugh!

A few minutes later Schvinsky was lying in the midst of a crowd of bystanders. He had been killed by a street car block from Madame Zonia's; Madame Zonia, expert teacup reader from the East you knew what the future held.

Are You Sleeping Maria?

by Uriah Heep

Maria Hutton was a very beautiful girl; she had just graduated from university, and, while attempting to decide on the future course of her life, was spending her time, doing very little, except going to parties, and making the acquaintance of many people.

One evening, at a very pleasant party, she met Eric Glain, a young lawyer, who, at that time, was just making a name for himself with his clear-sighted and cutting speeches at meetings and at court.

That evening Eric had taken Maria home, and she felt that his company was very agreeable, and that his opinions and views were very interesting, even if they were a little extreme.

From then on, they had met often, and became very fond of each other.

One Thursday morning Maria left her home early, to go to the hairdresser; she had a lot of shopping to do that morning, and so she hurried along the pavement, rather annoyed that her father needed the car, and could not let her have it. She came to the corner of a busy street, and began to cross it. When she reached the streetcar tracks she stopped to let a car pass, and then went on; a streetcar had just stopped in front of her, and she walked on, not worrying about what lay beyond...

Suddenly she heard the screeching of tires, a woman's scream, the howling of a motor came very near to her ear... she bent down instinctively... a crash...

For six weeks she was in hospital, for three weeks she could hardly move, and the doctors doubted her recovery, but her will to live was stronger than they had expected; slowly but surely she recovered, and finally, having been thoroughly examined, and re-examined, it was decided that she was fit to leave the hospital, but would have to rest for many weeks to come.

Her father was overjoyed, and being a widower, and since Maria was his only child, he took tremendous care with her.

Twice, or three times a week Eric would come to see her, and they would have long and interesting conversations. Now that she had recovered, Maria lost a lot of her strength, and often she would talk of being tired of living.

"Eric, I don't really know what I am living for," she once said, "there is very little in this life, when you really look at it soberly."

Eric was a little perturbed, "but Maria," he said, "all human beings are sent into this world with some purpose, they all have to accomplish certain things, and not until they have done everything they are meant to do, (which never happens) can they feel that they are useless. But they never reach that stage, there is always more to do, you must bear that in mind, Maria."

"But what can I do?" she asked.

That afternoon Dr. Herford was examining some new X-rays of Maria's chest. He studied them for a long time, and suddenly grew very pale, "my God, there's a blood clot forming right next to her heart!" He dashed for the telephone.

Eric and Maria were still talking. "I don't know what's the matter with me," Maria said. (Continued on Page Four)

Letter Forum

In Defence of "Daily."

Editor, McGill Daily.

With reference to the brilliant piece of literature submitted to the Daily by one, Shatan, I should like to make a few remarks. First let me say that such constructive criticism is indeed a remarkable tribute to the intelligence of the McGill student—at least of some McGill students.

I am sure that the suggestions which Mr. Shatan has made are really far too deep for the comprehension of the average mind and therefore I should like to translate them so that their full value is not lost on the rest of the student body.

First Mr. Shatan wishes to abolish the movie reviews on the grounds that they are some sort of a harmful opiate. I suggest Mr. Editor that you also abolish the notices and the advertisements as unsavoury influences on the student mind. Further the news and the sports page are mere trivialities in wartime and can therefore also be abolished. The features are obnoxious, and therefore you should stop encouraging student literary effort, and use the material written at some other college. The editorials can be eliminated without discussion.

Above these suggestions stands the most original of them all, that the Daily publish only twice per week. It is difficult to comprehend why such depth of insight as Shatan exhibits has not come to light in a more original manner than criticism.

Having thus disposed of most of the Daily it would seem that further constructive efforts would embody the filling of half the first page with jokes, and the rest of it on discussions of the causes of war. The second page could have the odd feature and the rest devoted to the conduct of the war. Here could be discussed the military strategy and so forth essential to winning the victory. The third page could deal with the problems of economics which the war has created, and the final pages could be devoted to the discussion of the peace.

Thus Mr. Editor I am sure you can see the brilliance of the constructive ideas which Mr. Shatan has suggested. I feel sure it will be a sorry day for McGill when such men as Mr. Shatan Graduate. Or a sorry day for the world.

Yours sincerely,
Allan Thomson,
Arts 3

On Tuesday's Daily

The Editor,
McGill Daily

Dear Sir,

I would like to congratulate the editorial board on the high calibre of yesterday's issue of the "Daily". My complaint published yesterday although perhaps a little too strongly worded, still stands however, as issues of the quality of yesterday's are much too few and far between.

Yours not quite so disgustedly,
H. C. F. Shatan.

On Political Questions

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

In Wednesday's editorial you state that "several people have suggested that the Daily take part in political discussions of various natures, that students were vitally interested in the war from all points of view." Then the editorial goes on to prove that this is impossible. The reason given is that the Constitution prevents the editor from treating of a religious or political question in a partisan way.

The subtlety of this argument involves very little analysis. The assumption seems to be that the Editorial Staff is not competent to deal with any political question in any other than a "partisan way." If that is so, it behooves us to secure a new staff.

Another rather startling assumption.

tion seems to be that any student interest in the war is both political and partisan. "All points of view" certainly lead one to this conclusion.

The Daily could make a real contribution to the Student War Effort, to the War Council and to us who study by bringing into the open the many sides of the questions that are bothering us. That there are many things that should be thought out and talked out was shown by the speakers in the recent Boyce Shield Competition.

Some enlightened leadership is needed if we are to make any real contribution either to the war effort or to peace-time planning.

You, sir, are the one official on the campus in a position to provide this leadership. That is the basis for much of the criticism that has been levelled at the Daily lately. It is not my task to tell you how to run the Daily, but this at least is becoming increasingly clear, The Daily is not quite measuring up to what is expected of a University Daily in time of war.

We would like very much to see you bring up many of the things that we are concerned about. In your strategic position you can do us a real service by clarifying the matters with which we are most deeply concerned.

Norman Hillyer,
Debating Union.

More Defence.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

Bouquets of stinkweed to you, Mr. H. C. F. Shatan, for the "wonderful" job you are doing of blasting the Daily this year! And, mind you, my opinion is not that of an isolated individual but of a surprisingly (to you) large group of students at McGill.

For some reason, Mr. Editor, a newspaper is often metaphorically referred to as a "rag." Still, I don't see why this "rag" (and the Daily is a newspaper, regardless of Mr. Shatan's opinion) has to be used to sop up the writings of every ignominious "jerk." (The word's been used by Mr. Shatan so I guess it's grammatically correct.)

Constructive criticism has its place, to be sure. However, I fail to see where the constructive criticism comes in by hurling such beautiful compliments like, stinkweed, jerk and the like.

Mr. Shatan, I happen to be a credited member of the Daily staff. I strongly resent your criticism, such as it is. For never once, in the few years that I have worked on the paper have I seen you down here to help in the work. And if I am right, never once have you contributed to the Daily, even as an average student. I know, you don't have to tell me that it isn't necessary to be a carpenter to know that one leg of the table is shorter than the rest. But you do have to know what the table is supposed to be to criticise its deficiencies. Does Mr. (Continued on Page Four.)

Redmen to Meet Navy In Tilt for First Place

Teams Evenly Matched for N.D.H.L. Fixture

McGill's pucksters will be going all out for their second straight victory tomorrow night when they skate onto the Forum ice to meet the formidable Navy squad in the N.D.H.L. Each of these teams won their opening fixtures last Friday, and the winner of this game will have sole control of first place.

In all probability the line-ups for the game will be the same as they were last week with Farmer, Costigan and Blair forming the Redmen's first line; Crutchfield, MacDonald and Hale, and Lockwood, Nicholson and Humphries forming the other two lines. Ward and Owen will again be the main defensive pair, with Gagnon backing them up. The Navy squad will be led by Read, Buchanan, Browne, MacFarlane and Andy Anton.

TWO STRONG SQUADS

In last week's encounters both teams showed superior ability all round that it is the general belief that one of them will wind up on top at the end of the season, and the Redmen are trying to make sure that they are the ones who do. In the first game the Navy squad walked away from the Army by the lop-sided score of 9-1. They showed far too much power for their opponents, and mixed it up with a bit of rough play. The thriller of the evening, however, was the second game when McGill and Air Force put on a tense match that was undecided to the last minute. The play displayed was among the best yet seen at the Forum, and the Redmen were chiefly responsible. Comparing the hockey of both matches, the latter seemed to show a much finer brand of stick-handling and puck-chasing than did the Navy squad which played a more bruising game.

From this it may be assumed that tomorrow night's fixture will develop into a hard-fought tussle with the lighter, but faster McGill team coming up against a solid Navy line-up. With one team thus showing a strong offensive play, and the other an equally strong defence, a very exciting match should result.

Fencing Exhibition Bouts This Saturday Afternoon

This Saturday afternoon, in addition to the usual get-together of coeds' and men's fencing clubs, there will be a special attraction Coach George Tully and Charles Otis will give a varied exhibition with all three weapons. Besides showing how a real foil and sabre bout should be fought, these two former Olympic Stars will give a special duelling sword and dagger exhibition. This two-weapon bout is one that requires real skill and dexterity, and anyone interested in fencing should be on hand to see the feature.

The practice will start at 3:00 p.m. and will continue until 4:30. A large turnout is requested since this is a marvellous opportunity for beginners to polish up on their thrusts and parries. It should be stressed that for those who are interested in the coming assault-at-arms, and wish to take every opportunity to practise, this Saturday afternoon class is ideal. Much more fencing can be carried on and hence benefit obtained from such a period amounts to considerably more than anything derived from an ordinary session.

BADMINTON

There will be mixed badminton every Saturday night at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium, and every Tuesday from 7-10 at R.V.C. Inter-section games will begin shortly, and all those interested should get in touch with Margaret McGarry.

WRESTLING PRACTICES

Wrestling practices will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5:15 p.m. in the B.W. & F. room.

BASKETBALL

Basketball practices will be held: 5:00 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
3:30 p.m. on Saturdays until further notice.

The purpose of these practices is to select a team to represent McGill in outside competition.

FENCING

Mixed fencing practices will be held every Saturday afternoon from 3:00 to 4:30 in the B.W. & F. Room. On Saturday, Nov. 21, a special fencing exhibition will be given by George Tully and Charles Otis, both of whom were members of Canada's Olympic team. All interested have been invited to attend.

HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

There will be an informal handball tournament on Saturday, November 21st, at 2:30 p.m. There are a number of handball enthusiasts at McGill all of whom are urged to come out and help make the first McGill Handball Tournament a real success.

Services League Team Out for First Blood

McGill's basketball season will get under way tomorrow night at Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium when their hoopers will make their debut against the Lachine Manning Depot squad. For most of the Redmen it will be the first time they have played on a major league team, while the Air Force team, fresh from its victory over the Longue Pointe Ordnance Corps team, is out looking for fresh blood.

Only veteran on the McGill squad is Ned Mahon who played for the McGill junior hoopers during their last intercollegiate competition. However, Coach Van Wagner has a group of willing newcomers who have played on intercompany quintets, and whose ability is much greater than their experience would warrant. All in all there will be ten men on the team, the remaining being Evans, Eastwood, Murray, Rosensvieg, Shacter, Zal-kind, Kaneb, MacRae, and Deacon. These men are all fast and tricky, and should give their opponents plenty of trouble, although Mr. Van Wagner has let it be known that he does not expect them to win the championship. He has said, however, that they will win a goodly number of their games.

POWERFUL TEAM

As far as the M.S.B.L. is concerned, McGill will enter a squad of championship calibre and should be right in their fighting to the end of the season. Included on the team are Dave Holdridge, one of McGill's leading scorers Ron Wilson, star of last year's Eastern Canadian Champions, and such stalwarts as Delbel, Munroe and Robinson. Thus with two teams entered in local circuits McGill is reasserting the position it held until recently of Eastern Canada's leading exponent of the game of the ball-and-hoop.

Two Dates Chosen for Novice Assault-at-arms

Boxing, Fencing And Wrestling To Be Featured

McGill's annual novice assault-at-arms will be held this year in the gym on December 16th and 17th respectively. It will be slightly different from both the previous meets in that it will not be an Intercompany contest as was the case, but will take the form of an "Inter-unit" competition in which those taking part will represent either the U.A.T.C., or "A" or "B" Wings of the C.O.T.C. This will promote greater rivalry than would otherwise be the case, as there will be less division of the entrants, and there is unlikely to be any lop-sided representation from any particular unit.

FOR NOVICES ONLY

As for the name of the tilt implies, this event is for novices only, and last year's Intercompany champions are barred from entering, as are any Intercollegiate, Provincial or Dominion champions. Among the events to be contested are Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing, while if sufficient interest is shown Weightlifting may also be added on a competitive basis.

In Boxing and Wrestling the competitors will be divided into eight classes according to their weights. These will be as follows: 118 lbs., 125 lbs., 135 lbs., 145 lbs., 155 lbs., 165 lbs., 175 lbs., and heavy-weight. In the event of a weightlifting competition a similar grouping will apply. Hence in these sports a man will compete only against another individual who possesses a similar weight and probably similar strength to his own. Since all competitors are novices, their skill will be fairly equal, and interesting contests should result. These factors should provide a strong incentive for even the most modest beginner to participate in the assault. In the fencing the competitors will be grouped into pools of four or five men with the following events being contested: Foil, Epee and Sabre.

Winners and runners-up in each event are entitled to a 3rd Grade Award and a Numeral respectively. This will be the only way in which novices can win such awards in any of the above-mentioned events, and hence all interested persons are urged to get into shape for the meet as soon as possible. Boxing classes are being held every Tuesday and Thursday, Wrestling on Tuesdays and Fridays, Fencing on Mondays and Fridays, and Weightlifting daily between the hours of 5:15 and 6:15 p.m. daily. These classes are open to anyone who wishes to participate and a special welcome is extended to freshmen and beginners to attend.

Playoffs Start Monday For League Championship

On Monday next the first of the final two-out-of-three games in the Inter-Company Softball League will be played. The two teams which survived the preliminary and semi-final series are "D" Coy and the U.A.T.C. They will meet on the 23rd and on the 25th and if an additional game is necessary also on the 30th of this month.

"D" Company, made up of Rossy, Tamarro, Duffy, Becker, Summerskill, Rae, Montey, Frank and others defeated "B" Company to qualify for the finals. The U.A.T.C. team comprising Allan, Kline, Wilson, Goode, Roche, Ford, Poole, Bailey, Smith, Williams, Hyndman and Kemp staged a major comeback when it disposed of the formidable "E" Coy team which was was rated the best in the league.

The winner of the final series will become Inter-Company Champions and will meet in a special two-out-of-three series with the R.C.A.F. Detachment located at McGill. The radio-locators were campus kings in softball last year and though the present team is an entirely new one it is said to be even better than last year's team.

All games will be played in the main part of the gymnasium and will commence at 5:15 p.m. Umpire-in-Chief is Bernie Robinson.

Are you Sleeping Maria?

"I've just had a sleep, and still I feel tired!"

"Oh never mind, Maria," Eric said, "you'll soon be over that, don't sleep now, the doctor said that you shouldn't sleep too much, you've got to get used to keeping awake for longer periods now."

"Yes, you are quite right Eric, and while you are here it isn't too hard to keep awake, anyway."

He smiled at her... the phone rang, there was no one in the house except the two; Eric excused himself, and went to answer it. Maria leaned back in her chair.

"Yes Doctor Hereford," Eric said... there was a long silence, and then Eric put down the receiver quietly. He walked back to the living room where Maria was sitting, and saw her leaning back in the chair, she was suddenly very pale. He looked at her... "are you sleeping, Maria?" he said.

Shatan know what the purpose of the Daily is? Does he know the Editorial policy which is formulated by the Editorial board chosen by his own democratically elected Students' Council? If he disagrees with the Editorial board and its policy, he has a perfect democratic right to call a meeting by getting fifty names signed on a sheet of paper, and have a Students' Society meeting, to try and rectify what he thinks is wrong.

Mr. Shatan doesn't like this and he doesn't like the other thing. And above all, his most serious criticism is that he doesn't like the movie reviews.

Let him not forget that the Daily is merely the organ of the Student body. It sets no standard and prints the best it gets. And if the best isn't good enough—in go the filler and the jokes. (Incidentally our Exchange Editor thanks you, Mr. Shatan, for your compliment.) If Mr. Shatan will have the intestinal fortitude to come down and contribute, and if his contribution is better than the best we get, it will be printed. There is no reason on earth for the McGill Daily to become the clearing house for every publicity seeker who likes to see his name in print.

Mr. Editor, I sincerely hope that you'll have the courage to print this epistle, but I'm almost willing to bet that you won't. I'm sore, By Gad.

P.S. Somebody just suggested that our constructive criticizer should be Shatan-quartered. What do you think?

The admirable spirit of self-sacrifice as displayed by the great body of McGill students in their enthusiastic attendance and response at yesterday's commemorative meeting will go down in history along with the comparative self-sacrifice of the Czech students.

The only nearly appropriate recognition of such a magnificent gesture as that which the McGill students made at that meeting is embodied in my sincere and fervent hope that the McGill students of today will, in the future, be respected and remembered in exactly the same unforgettable manner which they employed in the stirring display of their sympathy and unity with the other unfortunate students of this war-torn world.

On Tuesday, November seventeenth, free students everywhere were allowed the privilege of paying tribute to the Czechoslovak

Annual Photographs

The following graduating students are expected to have their pictures taken at Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent Street Wednesday, for publication in the Annual. They will be taken at any time from 9.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. without appointment, except Saturdays. Appointments for sittings at other hours, if necessary, may be made by phoning PL. 1075 for an appointment.

The price, $2.25 (or $2.75 if a finished portrait is desired), is payable at time of sitting.

NOTE—The names of several graduating students have unfortunately been omitted from these published lists. This is regrettable but nonetheless unavoidable. These lists are obtained from the Registrar's Office and are thus the best available.

All graduating students should have their photographs taken. The lists which are published serve as a guide, indicating to the student which day he should go to the Studios. Any student whose name is not on the list, yet is graduating this year, should have his picture taken at the same time as the rest of his class.

heroes. Services were held to honour those students who gave their lives rather than renounce their ideals, but the majority of the McGill faculty and student body did not avail themselves of this opportunity to pay them homage. Young men and women in Czechoslovakia,

Yugoslavia, Greece, France, China, and all other enemy-occupied countries, have given their lives, but the smug, complacent, self-satisfied members of this university found an hour too much to spare.

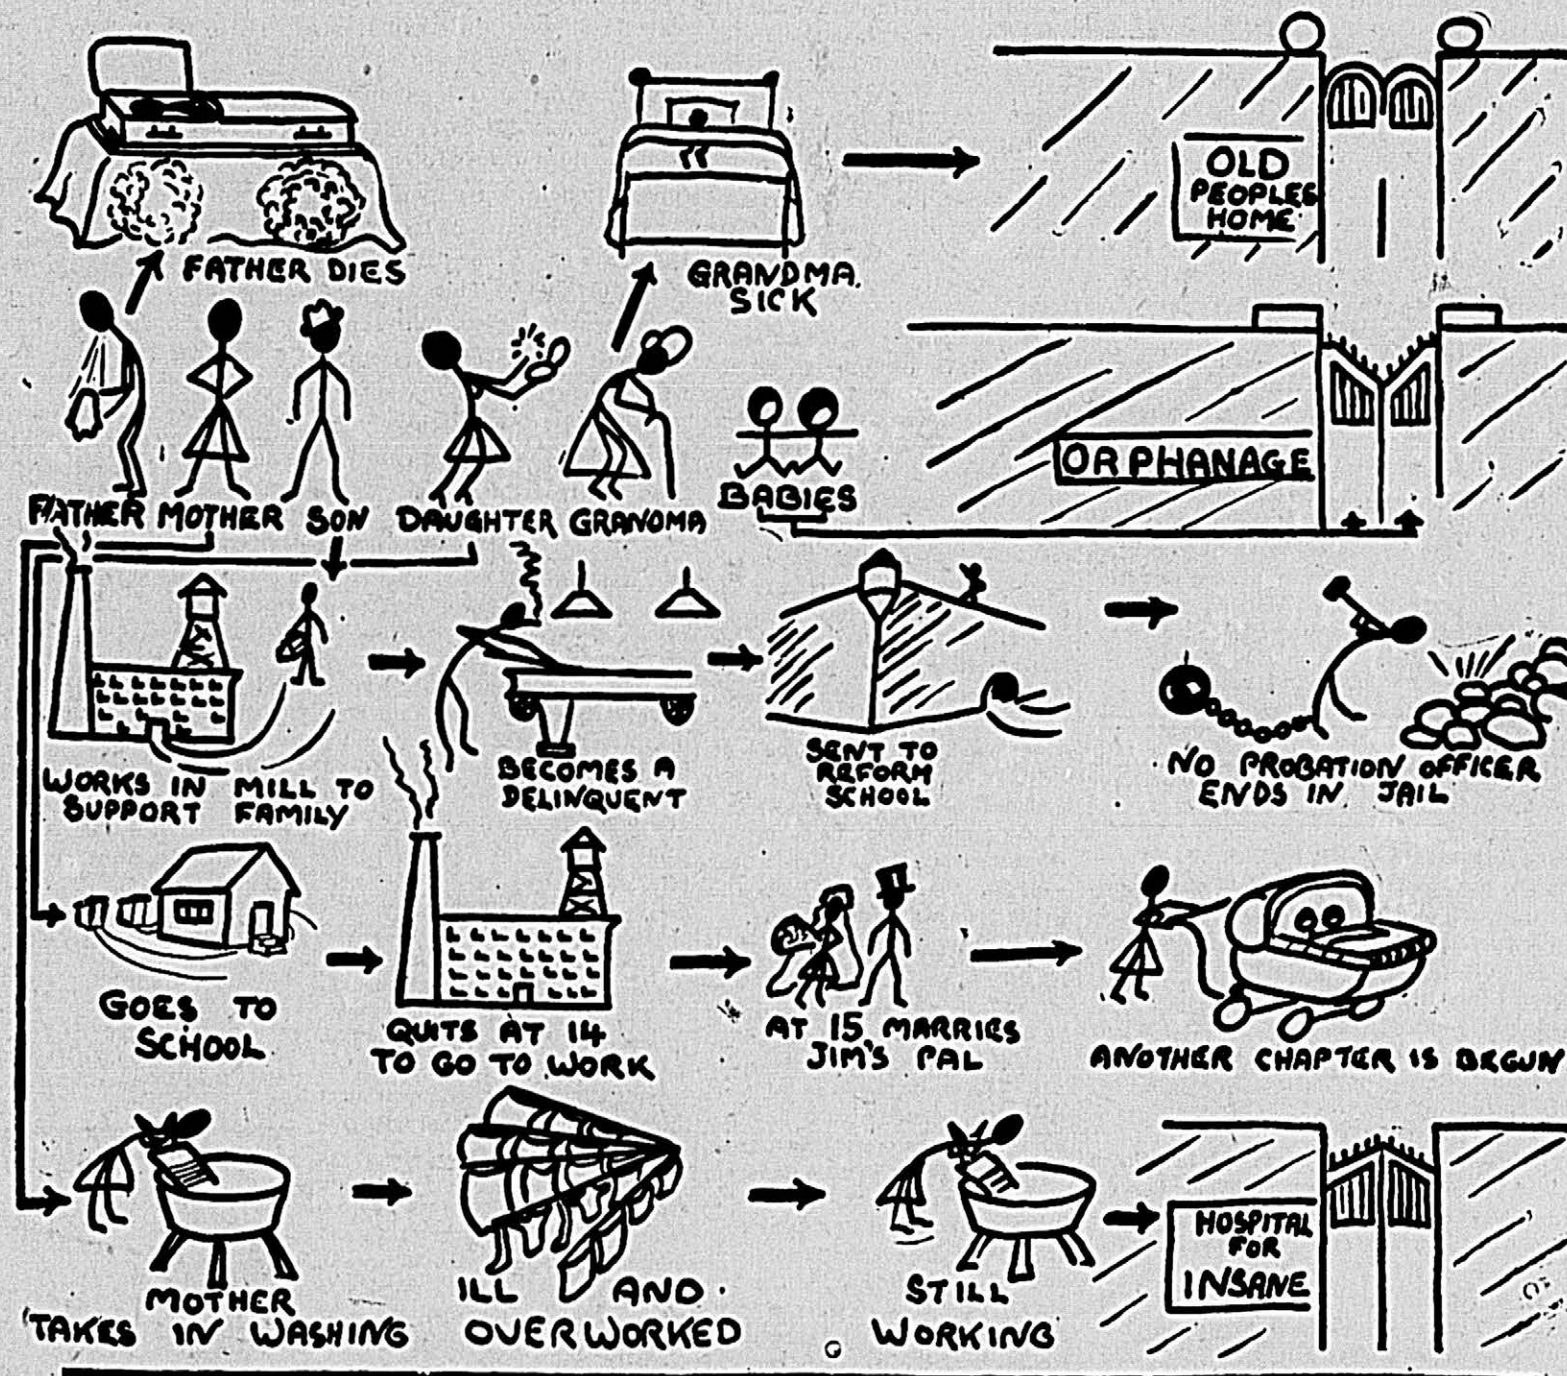

We make this protest in all sincerity, justly disgusted at the indifference which this occasion has proved. We feel that the right to live in peace and democracy, the privilege of attending colleges and universities, and the happiness made possible by the "four freedoms" are advantages too great to be taken lightly, advantages of which we must prove ourselves worthy. Let us not fail in the task. Shirley C. Block, B.A. '44; Ruth Gherman, B.A. '43; Sarina Konowitz, B.A. '45; F. Edelman, B.Sc. II; J. Lambeck, B.Sc. II; F. W. Bauer, B.A. IV; R. Nisse, B.Sc. II; J. T. V. Atkinson, Eng. 44; D. Bailey, Tech.;
